

What is a Planned Unit Development?

DEFINITION

A Planned Unit Development (PUD) is an area with a specific contiguous acreage to be developed as a single entity according to a plan for residential and non-residential uses. PUDs usually include provisions for the clustering of buildings, a mixture of land uses and building types, preservation of natural resources, and promotion of common open space. PUD allows for flexibility in terms of development standards and requirements. Ideally, this will result in a better planned and more livable development.

ELEMENTS

- design creativity;
- mixture of land uses;
- combination of architectural styles;
- creative site design;
- abundant, accessible and property-located open and recreational space, schools and other public and private facilities;
- efficient networks of utilities, streets and other infrastructure;
- energy conservation;
- minimize negative impacts on the environment and on human quality of life.

COMPONENTS

The applicant seeking a zoning map amendment for a PUD district is required to prepare a Master Plan followed by one or more Development Plans. Each Plan includes a map component and a plan report component.

About the Planning & Zoning Office:
